Summary of study/report	The report is the preliminary version of a comprehensive study currently being conducted by a cross-party task force charged with evaluating the effectiveness of the government's de-radicalization efforts.
Key findings	CVO Obstacles
	The report implies that de-radicalization, either in specialized centers or in prisons, does not work because most Islamic radicals do not want to be de-radicalized. The report also denounced the emergence of a "de-radicalization industry" in which associations and non-governmental organizations with no experience in de-radicalization have been awarded lucrative government contracts and By housing Islamists in separate prison wings, they actually had become more violent because they were emboldened by "
