Key findings	CvE Italy
Conclusions of review	One important development is the provision of specialized training activities aimed at providing elements of knowledge in the field of intercultural and interreligious dialogue in order to prevent radicalization and Violent extremism of the jihadist matrix, and also the knowledge of foreign languages. Training is aimed at staff members of the police, the armed forces and the penitentiary administration, the teachers and managers of schools and universities, social and healthcare providers. Special education programs should be developed to raise awareness of civic issues among detainees, through the enhancement of intercultural education and respect for differences. The bill also promote employability and social inclusion of disadvantaged people (including people at risk of radicalisation) to foster mutual understanding and respect among people and communities and to build a foundation on which active citizenship rests. The bill also establish la creation of the National Center for Radicalization (Crad) , this public Body would be in charge of managing the projects, actions and initiatives to be taken to counteract this phenomenon, including ( technological tools; promotion of pilot projects, training courses)
