Summary of study/report	The report provides an essential contribution to the prevention of radicalization in Italy and the development of long term strategy
Key findings	CvE Obstacle
Conclusions of review	One of the most important results of the study commissioned by the commission is that today there are two places where the "radicalization" path is most developed: the web and The prisons. Also if in Italy, unlike other European countries, the number of "foreign fighters" is reduced, an approach based on repression is no longer sufficient. Forensics and the intelligence have been warned of the need to use prevention tools other than expulsion. In Italy there is no strategy for preventing radicalization, so we need of "soft measures to prevent radicalization in the embryonic stage" or in the case of "returning foreign fighters" from the areas of conflict. One of the main recommendations of the committee's work is to create a strategy for prevention in the medium and long term.
