and now ...

Part 2: The economic history of Belgium

Introduction

- Small country → small internal market → obliged to focus on external markets
- On top of the worlds list of large import and export countries
- Very large import and export-quote

Internationally oriented economy

- Middle ages: busy trade center;
- 10-15th century: important textile center (cloth)
- 15th century: Antwerp became more important (Atlantic harbour)
- 19th century: Wallonia, productive region (mining/steel)
- Now:
  - 2 out of every 3 large companies depend on foreign decisions

From industry toward services

- 1970-1995: reduction of the employment in primary sector but mostly in secondary sector
- partly compensated by strong growth in tertiary sector
- increase of employment of women
- more small companies

Two major economical problems

- Unemployment
- Public debt

Unemployment

- Slight improvement but still too high
  - differences between sexes: mostly women
  - differences between regions: mostly Brussels and Wallonia
- Causes
  - Sectorial problems
  - A lot of people of active age
  - Increase of employment of women
  - Very high productivity
  - Very high cost of labour (fiscal and parafiscal)

Working population

- Total: +/- 4,1 mlj
- Agriculture: 0,07 mlj
- Industry: 1 mlj
- Services: 3 mlj
